

Abstract ..

Forms of extremism and one of the most important threats to the international system throughout history is a phenomenon. Not the result of political and Western religious events but grew roots beginning of the formation of communities and evolved this phenomenon and has evolved with forms and methods through which they pass their goals for others and so this phenomenon has become the focus of all the countries and communities you are experiencing, but extremism started didn't have a broad international influence wasn't extremism is capable of a threat to international security image that can be recognized today, due to a combination of political, economic and cultural variables world watched the growth and the growing multi-asset phenomena have the ability to have a cosmic impact, taking advantage of the time the same technical developments and economic and cultural to build networks and mechanisms to be able to impose the threat, and because international security is one of the most important priorities of the major powers and the ultimate goal for many countries because of inclusiveness and partnership in achieving security has become everyone understands that the security investigation and threatening is the responsibility of all and because the world has witnessed the emergence of regulation of non-state believes in extremist ideology has become of these groups represent a real and realistic challenge is able to breach security and the imposition of international instability has not extremism forms and generations and the means used and a lot of security. Facts no longer achieve the national security or international, it's easy in the light of the spread of this phenomenon and the inability to be identified before they are imposed under threat.

It is worth mentioning that the new on the subject of extremism and international terrorism at the present time that he had become a global phenomenon that is, they are not linked to region, culture or community or religious groups or certain ethnic, the first years of the twenty-first century has seen a surge marked in terrorist operations were the most US policy in the region under the so-called Middle East, where the occupation of Iraq was made and accepted by the occupation of Afghanistan in addition to ongoing for a number of countries in the region and threats to try to change the features of the region by introducing the Middle East division of projects.

The premises and the foundations of international security have changed and no longer countries are able to work alone to achieve even its national security has regional and international conflicts, which were built on a sectarian basis contributed or nationalism in the growth and spread of extremist ideology in contrast, means and mechanisms and the basics of confidence by the major powers were not level to counter this phenomenon Adding to the possibility of international security threat and thus become the global stability of the system depends on the b particles threat posed by extremist groups.

Extremism today has become a radicalization of cross-border and the possibility of addressing him must be the responsibility of all, therefore, the importance of the study because of the growth and the increasing phenomenon and employed by armed groups that believe in extremist ideology in order to achieve their goals, and because of this phenomenon spread recently significantly became lost exploited extremist groups and organizations the phenomenon of political instability in some fragile states for the presence and concentration and then used a springboard for various terrorist attacks around the world

Note the implications of the phenomenon of extremism, whether geographically or militarily and economically, and even socially made the face of this phenomenon is inevitable and that the international consensus and alliances to facing extremism has become indisputable strategies of States so in recognition that if it did not face this phenomenon and working to combat it will be the victim even if it was far geographically the level of geo-strategic threat. And that the day after the threat of extremism has become one of the major powers strategies therefore mobilized all nations possibilities to cope with military campaigns launched reform programs and arranged to eliminate this phenomenon.
